City of Salida Hires New Finance Director

Salida, CO – The City is pleased to welcome Aimee Tihonovich as its new Finance Director. Tihonovich comes to the City following 23 years with Pueblo County, Colorado, having served as the County’s Budget and Finance Director for 19 years. Working directly for the Pueblo County Board of County Commissioners, Tihonovich has managed a $200 million annual budget during her tenure and has earned Certificates of Achievement for Excellence in Financial Reporting every year since 1998. Ms. Tihonovich holds a degree in Business Administration – Accounting from the University of Southern Colorado and is a former Certified Public Accountant.

According to Mayor P.T. Wood, “The City of Salida is thrilled to welcome Aimee Tihonovich to our organization and we look forward to her breadth of experience immediately having an impact on the City’s operations. Aimee’s expertise at guiding the finances for a large Colorado County government will serve the citizens of Salida well as we aim to deliver clear and concise budgets, audits, and financial statements.”

Tihonovich will be joining the City’s administrative team full time in early May, but she is already gearing up to get to work alongside City staff as they prepare information for the 2018 audit and updated monthly financial reports. “Aimee will be a great addition to the team that we have here at the City. She’s knowledgeable and experienced in local government and her presence will support the front line staff that have been working overtime to steer the City’s finances in the right direction,” said Alisa Pappenfort, City Treasurer. “We can’t wait to have her get started and for her to dive into some pretty big projects moving forward.”
